

Abstract

Modelling of large systems in applications motivates development of unconventional geometric and topological notions. Among them are mixed probabilistic - topological concepts, such as random graphs and their high dimensional generalizations (random complexes). An interesting class of closed smooth manifolds depending on a large number of random parameters arise as configuration spaces of mechanical linkages with bars of random lengths. In the talk I will discuss these and some other models and related recent results.